

POLISH FLIERS
LEAVE FRANCE;
BOUND FOR N. Y.

Reported Safe Over Dreux At 1.38 A. M., New York Time

CARRY HEAVY LOAD

Will Head for Azores, Landing Only if More Fuel Is Needed

DREUX, France, Aug. 3.—(INS)— The "Marzalek Pilsudski," the plane in which the Polish fliers, Major Louis Idzikowski and Major Casimir Kubala, are attempting a trans-Atlantic flight, passed over this city at 6.38 a. m. (1.38 a. m. New York daylight time) today flying easily and making good time despite its heavy fuel load.

The plane was flying at an altitude of 1,300 feet and making a speed of about 110 miles an hour.

Dreux is about 68 miles west of Paris.

The "Marzalek Pilsudski" is an almost metal biplane powered by a 650 horse-power Lorraine Dietrich motor.
Its wingspread is 65 feet and cruising speed about 100 miles an hour.

Both aviators have had long experience. During the early part of the war they fought on opposite sides, Idzikowski fighting in the Russian armies and Kubala on the side of Austria, both learning flying during the war and joined the Polish air force when Poland became an independent country.

Their flight is sponsored by the Polish government and follows months of intensive preparation.

The plane is not equipped with radio apparatus and therefore will not be heard from directly on its flight. Radio equipment was dispensed with because of the heavy fuel load being carried.

PARIS, Aug. 3.—(INS)—Undeterred by the news that Capt. Frank T.
Courtney and three companions had been forced down on the Atlantic, the Polish fliers, Major Louis Idzikowski and Major Casimir Kubala, hopped off from Le Bourget Air Field at 5.49 a. m.
(12.49 a. m. New York daylight time) today, on another trans-Atlantic attempt with New York as their ultimate goal.

Burdened by the weight of 1200 gallons of fuel which the fliers calculated would take them more than 3,600 miles without a stop, the silver grey biplane "Marzalek Pilsudski" taxied more than three-quarters of a mile across the field before it lifted into the air.

Idzikowski was at the controls. A huge crowd which had been waiting at the field for several hours cheered wildly as the plane rose in the air and headed southwest for the coast.

"We may land in New York or anywhere," Idzikowski's parting words. Before the start the fliers had announced they would head for the Azores, landing there only if additional fuel were needed. If not, they said they intended flying direct to the Bermudas.

Weather conditions for the flight were ideal. Kubala, acting as nav-igator, sat next to Idzikowski in one of the two open cockpits. The plane is not cabin-enclosed.

After leaving the field the plane made a wide turn, avoiding the suburbs of Paris. Adjutant Clement, of the French aviation forces, accompanied the fliers in another plane.

Before starting Kubala expressed confidence that he and his companion would land in New York in forty hours as they expected a northeasterly wind behind them most of the way. For provisions, the fliers carried a dozen chicken sandwiches, two thermos bottles of coffee and six bottles of champagne. They said they expected to consume the champagne enroute "so as not to violate the United States prohibition laws."

Two Couples Celebrate
Wedding Anniversaries

Mr. and Mrs. William Barr, of Monroe street, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keers, of Jackson street, celebrated their wedding anniversaries on Saturday evening, by enjoying games of cards.

The occasion was the eighth anniversary of the Barr wedding, and the tenth anniversary for the Keers.

Prizes were won by Leonard Fenton, Wilmer Dyer, Mrs. Harvey Detrick, Mrs. Stanley Keers, and Mrs. Leonard Fenton.

Both honored couples received many pretty and useful gifts. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs.
Leonard Fenton and daughter Vivian, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hinman and son, Harry, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Dyer and children, Eleanor and Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Keers and children, Ethel, Violet, Anna and Lillian, Mr. and Mrs. William Lynch and children, Betty and Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Detrick, Archie Keers, Sr., Archie Keers, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Keers and Mr. and Mrs. William Barr and daughter, Doris. The affair was given at the home of the Barrs on Monroe street.

Bracken Post Bugle Corps Invited To Attend Picnic

The bugle corps of the Robert W.
Bracken Post and members of their families have been invited to participate in the annual picnic of the Jesse W. Soby Post, No. 148, American Legion, of Langhorne.

The picnic will be staged on Sunday at 12 o'clock, noon, in the meadow of Fred Bango's farm, Durham Road, one-half mile from Hellings Corner, north of South Langhorne.

In case of rain the festivities will take place in the Memorial House, at Langhorne, which is the Soby post headquarter building.

CO. SEAT POLICE TO HAVE
"COURTESY" AS MOTTO

New Chief Takes Charge Today — Once Member of State Force

TO HAVE FULL POWER

DOYLESTOWN, Aug. 3.—"Courteousness toward all motorists passing through Doylestown and those living here" will be the slogan from today on of the police department of this borough.

In order to better increase the efficiency of the department, Borough Council recently elected a new chief who has had more experience with directing traffic than the retiring chief, who is still retained as a member of the force.

The new chief, Martin E. Deshler, one of the original members of the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol and more recently chief of the detective force of the Keasbey and Mattison Asbestos Company's plants at Ambler, took charge of his new duties today.

Chief Deshler will be given full power to act in matters of traffic that have been causing considerable unrest among business men and motorists.
The parking laws will be enforced to the letter but Chief Deshler will instruct his men to be courteous about it.

"All will be treated alike, and there will be no favorites," Chief Deshler said yesterday.

SYRACUSE "U" ATHLETE
WINS 400 METRE HEAT

Beats Stellar Field of Six Starters in Olympics Event

ROWING AT SLOTEN

OLYMPIC STADIUM, AMSTERDAM, Aug. 3.—(INS)—Ray Barbuti, Syracuse University's all-star athlete brought the American shield down in front in a running event in the Olympic games by winning the 400 metre final heat today.

Barbuti's clinching race was timed in 47 4-5 seconds, just a fifth of a second behind the Olympic record, made by Eric Liddell, Great Britain, at the last games. The Syracuse entry beat a stellar field of six starters, the other American, Herman Phillips, Illinois
A. C., finishing sixth.

Bell, Canada, was second; Buchner, Germany, was third; Rinkel, Great Britain was fourth; and Stors, Germany, fifth.

SLOTEN, Holland, Aug. 3.—(INS)— The second day of the Olympic rowing regatta here opened auspiciously for the United States today when the American doubles scullers, Charles McLaine and Paul Costello scored an easy four-length victory over the Swiss pair.

The Penn A. C. pair rowed perfectly together, covering the 2,000 metre course in 7 minutes, 45 4-5 seconds, and the issue was never in doubt.

TRADE NOTES

N. Adler announces in today's Courier an August clearance sale, through which many Bristolians and those from nearby communities should profit.

Going over his large list of items upon the shelves of his store at 414 Mill street, Mr. Adler has priced many of them from one-third to one-half below the usual price.

In the offerings are those necessary articles of clothing which many men will wear with pride, in time learning the long-wearing quality of the garments.

Mohair suits and Palm Beach suits are there; as well as dress shirts and articles of underwear.

"Profit With Us" say the members of the Factors-to-You Furniture Company, whose local store is on Mill street.

This company, selling all kinds of house furnishings, is now offering the public an opportunity to profit with them through the gigantic sale being staged at its store.

Only a visit to the establishment will prove to the would-be purchaser the splendid values of the many suites of furniture priced exceptionally low.
A visit is advised.

See advertisement for Oldsmobile sedan at 215 Washington street, in
"For Sale" column of today's Courier.

SENATOR-ELECT SERIOUSLY ILL

WILLIAM S. VARE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 3.— (INS)—The condition of United States Senator-elect William S. Vare, Republican leader of Philadelphia, who suffered a stroke of apoplexy Wednesday night at his summer home at Ventnor, near here, was reported to be "still alarming" early today.

His personal physician, Dr. Ellwood R. Kirby, of Philadelphia, was in consultation with two local physicians.

Vare is 60 years old, the age at which both his brothers died.

He suffered from acute indigestion and from pleurisy at Ventnor this spring. This weakened him. According to Dr. Kirby, the stroke of apoplexy has cost the Senator-elect the use of his left arm and left leg. He fell out of bed while trying to struggle to his feet.

Some of his friends here were inclined to attribute Vare's condition to the bitter fight over his seat in the United States Senate—a fight waged after the recent Philadelphia election and campaign fund scandals. He has been worrying about this for a full year, his friends pointed out.

FLOWER ASSOCIATION IS ARRANGING FOR EXHIBIT

Committee Meets and Discusses Details for Annual Summer Show

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

It is planned to make the summer flower show to be held here on August 16th, one of the very best affairs of its kind ever staged in Bristol. It is to be given under the auspices of the Bristol Dahlia Association but flowers of every description will be exhibited.

The committee having the affair in charge met last night and perfected the plans and every grower of flowers in this section is invited to enter an exhibit.

The Dahlia Association is preparing for the fall show, also, which is expected to be larger this year than ever before. A meeting was recently held at which Mr. Alexander H. Hall presided. After the routine business had been transacted a new beetle trap was exhibited and its merits commented upon. Mr. Hall gave an interesting talk on beetles.

One of the new beetle traps was given as a door prize by Miss Eunice Williams and it was awarded to J. E.
Johnson, of Pond street.

Yearly election of officers was held and those chosen to serve for the seasons of 1928-1929 were as follows:

Alexander H. Hall, president; Miss Eunice Williams, vice-president; David Neill, secretary; J. E. Johnson, recording secretary; Arthur Seyfert, treasurer.

Daughters of America Have Installation of Officers

Officers installed by the Daughters of America, Bristol Council, No. 58, for the ensuing year are as follows:

Councillor, Ethel Thomas; assistant councillor, Stella Smith; vice councillor, Lottie Fennimore; assistant vice councillor, Clara Owens; conductor, Ethel Barr; warden, Olive Cochrane, outside sentinel, Nellie Fenton; inside sentinel, Lizzie Hinman; financial secretary, Joseph Keers; recording secretary, Carrie Keers; assistant recording secretary, Lillian Dyer.
Junior past councillor, John Bruddon; assistant junior past councillor, Leonard Fenton; representative, Lizzie Hinman; alternate, Jennie Detrick; trustee, Lottie Smith; pianist, Violet Keers.

Deputy Violet Keers installed the officers at a recent meeting in the lodge rooms.

OFF TO CHICAGO

Miss Averile Robinson left a few days ago for Chicago, where she will be married to Mr. Brehm, formerly of Bristol, but now of the Illinois city.

There was a group of friends present to bid Miss Robinson farewell, namely: Miss Kitty O'Donnell, of Crofton, Charles Hellyer, Frank Hurley, Fenton Larrissay, Harry McMullen, Dayton Fegley and William Thompson. A bouquet was presented to the bride-to-be.

TO DRAIN CREEK IN ENDEAVOR TO LOCATE YOUTH

"Teddy" Belz, 9, Missing Since June 28th, From Trenton Home

IS BELIEVED DROWNED

Dragging and Dynamiting of Stream of No Avail;
Reward Offered

Residents along the banks of the Delaware River on the Pennsylvania shore, opposite the points between Trenton and Bordentown, N. J., have been notified by Pennsylvania State Highway Patrolmen to be on the lookout for the body of "Teddy" Belz, Trenton lad, believed to have been drowned a few weeks ago.

Five weeks ago on June 28th, the lad, nine years of age, stood upon the Lee avenue bridge that spans San-hicon Creek, Trenton. He was clad in a bathing suit and those who saw him at the time thought the boy had intentions of going in to bathe. That was the last seen of the youth.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Belz, of 112 Columbia avenue, Trenton, have been frantic since the disappearance of their son and have asked Trenton city police to do everything possible to learn his whereabouts. They are likewise of the opinion that he was drowned.

During the past several weeks the Sanhicon has been dragged and dynamited in an effort to locate the supposedly lifeless body of the child. It has been planned to drain the stream tomorrow, in a further effort to learn if the body is held beneath the waters.

The Sanhicon Creek which runs parallel with the Delaware River from Washington Crossing to Trenton, can easily be drained, the operation being similar to leaving the water out of a canal.

It is stated by the Pennsylvania State Highway Patrolmen that a reward of $300 has been offered for the recovery of the body.

ODD FELLOWS PLAN FOR WILLOW GROVE PICNIC

Over 30,000 Members and Their Relatives Are Expected

BIG PROGRAM FOR DAY

The Past Grands Association, I. O.
O. F., of Southeastern Pennsylvania, is making great plans for the picnic which it will stage at Willow Grove Park tomorrow.

Between 30,000 and 40,000 people are expected to attend, including members of various lodges of the I. O. O. F. order throughout this section of the state, and members of their families.

Headquarter tents will be provided by the lodges of the different localities, where members and their families may meet or visit with other friends. Eighty-two of these tents are being placed.

Music will be furnished by the Odd Fellows Band of Jenkintown, and likewise by the children's orchestra from the Orphans' Home, Philadelphia, and from Orphans' Rest Lodge.

Drills will be given by the Patriotic Militant, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Lodge, and the Rebekah Lodges.
Sports and a big baseball game are likewise on the program. Fireworks will be enjoyed in the evening. The day promises to be one of much activity and pleasure.

Members of the local lodge and their families will leave the lodge room tomorrow at one o'clock.

Fallsington

Wm. Hergert expects to leave today for a trip to Mackinaw, Michigan.

Miss Frieda Reinke, of Trenton, is spending a week with Miss Mary Hergert.

Miss Lily M. Moore, was a week-end visitor at her cousin's, Mrs. Mae Moore, of Trenton Junction.

A number of the Falls Epworth League, attended the Rally of the Epworth League, at Trevose on Saturday evening.

The next meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held at the home of Mrs. Susie Hibbs, the third Friday in August.

Princess to Marry

Princess Ileana isn't going to become the wife of an American after all. Instead the beautiful daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania will espouse a German, Prince Heinrich of Schaumbourg-Lippe, according to reports reaching friends in the United States. The prospective bridegroom is one of the wealthiest men in Germany.

ELKS TO TAKE KIDDIES TO ATLANTIC CITY SOON

Annual Outing to Take Place On Wednesday, August 8th

ASK ALL TO GO ALONG

Annual outing for the crippled children of Bristol and vicinity under the auspices of Bristol Lodge of Elks will be held next Wednesday, August 8th.
This year the children are to be taken to Atlantic City where they will be shown all of the attractions and participate in the amusements to the very best of their ability. They will be given every care and attention by the Elks who never neglect anything which is for the children's comfort.

The committee is composed of the following:

Frank Pfeiffer, chairman; J. C.
Schmidt, Sr., Arthur P. Brady, Robert C. Ruhl, Carl Wenzel, John S. Lynn, Dr. William H. Fox, Fred D. Watson, Joseph B. Keating, Dr. H. Doyle Webb, Thomas A. Collier.

A list of crippled children in the area has been compiled but the committee does not want to miss any and for that reason are appealing to the children themselves. If you are eligible to go and have not been listed get into touch with any of the above mentioned committee at once.

The automobiles will call for the children early Wednesday morning and the party will leave Bristol on the nine o'clock ferry. The trip to the famous seaside resort will be made as quickly as possible and every comfort will be afforded the youngsters.

Upon arrival at the shore the youngsters will be given their dinner and will play upon the sand, take in the sights of the boardwalk and visit the other amusements. The return trip to Bristol will be completed before a late hour in the evening.

Edgely

Joseph Dewsnap, of Woodside avenue, and a party of friends from Bristol will spend the week-end on a fishing trip at Seaside Heights, N. J.

Mrs. John Wischer, of Dorrance street, Bristol, who has been spending several weeks with Mr. and Mrs.
Arthur Jennings, of Lancaster, has returned home. Mrs. Jennings and family returning with her to spend several weeks with relatives in Edgely and Bristol.

Mrs. Mary Watson, of Woodside avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Havens, of Philadelphia, will leave this week on a motor trip to Canada and other sections.

Miss Debora Douglass, of Radcliffe street, Bristol, was a Sunday guest of Mrs. Elizabeth Feakes, of Edgely avenue.

FRANK BURKE IS HOST TO ROTARY CLUB AT LUNCH

Delectable Menu Served In Store House of Manhattan Soap Co. Plant

GIVES SOUVENIR PKGS.

Group of 50 Rotarians Taken On Tour of Inspection
Through Plant

With unsurpassed hospitality Frank Burke, president of Manhattan Soap Company, played host yesterday afternoon to 50 members of the Bristol Rotary Club and their friends. The affair was staged in the mammoth store house of the Soap Company where tables seating a dozen each were spread. Each table was laden with bouquets of roses, sparkling silver, dainty white linen and the delicacies of the season arranged in most tempting style.

The meeting was opened with the singing of one verse of "America" after which there was the invocation by the Rev. Henry Stuart Paynter, rector of St. James's Episcopal Church.

During the serving of a very delectable menu there were speeches and routine business of the club transacted. Remarks of appreciation for the hospitality of the host were extended on behalf of the Club by Rev. Payn-ter and replied to by Mr. Burke.

At the conclusion of the luncheon the group was divided into two sections and taken on a tour of inspection of the plant. Each guest was presented with a souvenir package of the Manhattan Company's product—Sweetheart Soap.

One group of the visitors was headed by Mr. Burke and the other by Alfred Garrigue who explained and demonstrated the various stages of manufacture of Sweetheart Soap.

Starting at the very beginning—the heating system—the plant gave forth unique surprises to the Rotarians.

Touring the plant the Rotarians learned that eleven tons of coal are used in one day in the operation of the plant, and in a novel way is this food consumed by the huge heaters. The fine Barley coal placed above the grates falls upon them, and cylindrical grates in turn move ever so slowly, pushing the fuel into the flame.

Delaware River water is used, this being pumped to the huge stand pipe on the large tract of the Manhattan Company. This is used for heating purposes as well as for different processes in the manufacture of soap. A giant turbine generates electricity for the plant. The heaters, turbine, and storage vats used for tallow in its crude form are on the main floor of one of the three buildings.

Upon the second floor are seen six mammoth "kettles" used for boiling of the tallow. These kettles hold 375,000 pounds each, and as the boiling continues the semi-liquid occasionally spurts as a geyser.

The tallow, which is perfectly even in color and practically odorless, is placed in the kettles and saponified with caustic soda. The glycerine is extracted, this later having a good commercial value. Coconut oil is then put through the same process and after ten days the two mixtures, the tallow and coconut oil, are boiled together.

When the second boiling is completed the mixture stands for five or six days again, after which it is put through a machine known as the dryer. This piece of mechanism brings the matter out in a harder form, perfectly dry. As it runs from the machine it has the appearance of long thin pieces of macaroni, and is perfectly dry.

Large belts convey the soap from the first building, underground, to the finishing house. Here through small windows in a diminutive "tower" it can be seen passing up and up toward the roof of the building. In this structure it is placed on "mills," which take out nearly every bit of water. The amount left in the soap after it passes through these machines is six per cent.

When next seen the long strands or chips have become as one in round bars about two feet long. Men, working with rapidity, cut the bars in small pieces, large enough to make one cake.
From these small pieces the oval cakes of Sweetheart soap are formed.

One of the most interesting machines, and one that is a real labor saver to say the least, is the one used for wrapping the finished cake of cleanness. Each piece is placed in this piece of equipment in a separate compartment. The cakes then really fall into the small pieces of tissue paper, are wrapped and automatically placed in the small boxes. The boxes themselves are opened by the same machine, eliminating much time and trouble. The small boxes with their contents of sweet-scented soap are passed out on a long board, from which point they are packed in larger cartons, ready for shipment.

There are three large buildings on the 17-acre tract of the Manhattan Soap Company, and a portion of the third one is used for the making of a cold process soap. This, unlike the Sweetheart Soap, is not boiled. Saponification in this soap takes place in wooden frames. The makers of this

GOOD OLD, BAD OLD, TIMES

Tomorrow is usually a little further off than yesterday. Both, however, are removed from current discussion and both have a perspective which in some ways shows them up in more nearly their true relations and in some other ways distorts the view and makes them look grotesque. And yet the yesterday were once the present pulsing and important and imperative in demand. Tomorrow, too, will be just the plain present one of these days. And they are all alike more or less in the essential elements that compose the conditions of any period.

There are dreamers who continually are visioning the brighter day ahead, crystallizing it in not the millennium that is to be the acme of perfect conditions—certainly in a moral way and probably in a physical and economic and industrial way. And the dreamers have always to announce from advancing time to time a postponement, more or less indefinite, of the glad and perfect day when all the wrongs will be righted. So, too, there are retrospective dreamers, forever living in the past and investing the sacred departed days with a glamor and glory that was never quite justified by the facts in the time when these past times were prosaic and practical present. These reminiscent experts harp grandiloquently upon the "good old days" and deplore the decadence of the new—the deterioration of the manners and morals of the day in which we live and with which, after all, alone we have anything really to do.

It doesn't require an enthusiast or an optimist of the professionally obsessed variety to find the actual facts of the record and learn that the "good old days" were not a bit better than the todays we live through and wrestle with and glory in. Manners were not any better in the time of G. Washington than they are now—for the first gentleman of the land in writing some aphorisms upon the subject of common etiquette, advised his supposedly cavalierish readers to refrain from spitting upon the floors and into the corners of the rooms of polite homes.

Manners of the people as a whole today are better, gentler, more courteous, more unselfish than they were in those "hazy, daisy, lazy good old days." And if there are crime waves that spread over the front pages of the papers these days now and then the general moral conditions in this and in practically every other country are better today in the main than in those graciously correct days to which the grouches and growlers are barking back forever by comparison and contrast. There are more people now than in the less populous days of the century ago and there are more papers and quicker communication and more thorough publicity of the remissnesses and delinquencies of the more people now than when Ben Franklin started his little gazette in the eighteen hundred and something year. If you will back some old timer squarely up against the facts as his serious and honest memory recalls them you will find that times were as bad a quarter of a century ago as now—and worse in many respects. The moral standard has been raised with the passing years and the world is better than it was anywhere and anyhow in those "halcyon times of the 'good old' days."

To make people less lawless, make less law.

Mill and Radcliffe Streets

A safe place to live—

This thought is uppermost in the minds of every individual seeking a place of residence today.

SAFE

As to health

As to keeping children away from lanes of traffic

As to open spaces in which children may play

As to the general surroundings of the community.

SAFETY

in every sense of the word is typified in the modern dwellings which can be rented from me for $25 per month.

Every house is constructed of brick—safety from fire.

Every house is sewerage — safety from disease-breeding spots.

Every house is lighted by electricity—safety from antiquated lighting systems.

Every house faces on open spaces, thus having plenty of light and fresh air—safety as to health.

Every house is far from the main highways of traffic — safety for the children.

Two-story brick residences containing six rooms and bath for $25 per month. All newly papered and painted throughout. Conveniences which are to be found in any modern house today: electricity, gas, hot air heater, water.

All are located in a desirable residential section and close to railroad station and industries.

STORES

A number of small stores in good locations suitable for grocery stores and meat markets. Rents moderate.

SYNOPSIS

A satchel containing $200,000 has been stolen from the Mercer National Bank. The Professor, leader of a gang of crooks, suspects pretty Rose Shannon of knowing where the money is. Hoping that she may give the game away inadvertently, he assigns Chuck White, one of his gangsters, to wait Rose with him to visit a supposed "aunt." There Chuck falls in love with Rose, and when she tearfully denies all knowledge of the robbery he determines to protect her. Suspecting that Chuck is double-crossing him, the Professor arrives with his gang. They overpower him, leaving Rose alone in the cottage with the Professor.

Lefty picked up an overcoat from a chairback and put it on. "Come on, Sparrow." He shoved the man towards the door.

The three made a dash for the carriage, scrambling in. Molly in front with Mug, while Sparrow and Lefty took their places on either side of Chuck. The Mug picked up the reins and slapped the horse's rump smartly. The wet, bedraggled animal gave a start and then broke into a jog-trot.

Stung by the chill wind and the driving rain, Chuck was beginning to come to his senses. He realized now that they were leaving the house behind, and that neither Rose nor the Professor was with them.

"You can scream all you like, young lady."

He'd been a fool to try to stand out against the entire gang. Rose—Rose, back there in that lonely house with that man. He had to do something—get back to her some way. There was Sparrow—his ally, beside him. Cautiously he nudged the man with his elbow. Sparrow raised his eyes, nodded his head, and then apparently went to sleep.

CHAPTER XVI

Upstairs in her room Rose set the lamp on the little pine washstand beside the china bowl and pitcher, sprigged with moss roses, and began to undress. The mellow, yellow glow lighted up the daintily flowered papering, brought forth an answering gleam from the time-softened cherry high-boy and the spool-poster bed, and made dancing shadows on the walls. Through the half-opened windows came a slight wind, setting the ruffled curtains to fluttering like waving, white hands.

She threw a pale green negligee about her shoulders and began to brush the tangled curls. Below, she could hear the faint sound of intermingling voices rising and falling. She yawned, put down the brush and transferred the lamp to the bedside table. She went over to the window and looked out. There were no stars visible, and darkening, low-hung clouds moved swiftly across the indigo sky. The strong breeze caught at her gown, making it flap about her slender body.

Not yet sleepy, the girl jumped into the soft bed, fluffed up the pillows, arranging them behind her back, and nestled in their downy whiteness. She picked up a magazine from the table beside her and casually leafed over its pages, stopping at last at an unread story.

How long she read she did not know, but her tired head was sinking back into the pillows, and her eyes were opening and closing fitfully. Then suddenly she sat bolt upright, her hand clutching at her heart. A loud banging caught her ears; dull thudding sounds came to her; a whining cry startled her. She gazed about the room. A gust of wind rattled against the window, sent the curtains flying madly in the opened frame. A flurry of rain drenched the sill and spattered the floor.

Rose jumped out of bed and pulled down the windows. A sharp flash of lightning silvered the sky, blinding her for the moment. A clap of thunder smote her senses, dragging itself out into rumbling, angry groanings. She covered her ears with her hands and fled to the comforting, all-enveloping softness of the bed. An outside shutter, torn from its fastenings, banged repeatedly against the house. Long branches of trees, whipped by the wind, rubbed up and down over the wet stones of the dwelling, making weird, ghostly moanings.

She shivered and drew the covers up about her head, trying to shut out the medley of terrifying sounds. But the heavy streaks of rain were beating against the window panes, rapping out a tattoo, running in great rivulets along the eaves, and the intermittent zig-zags of all. The intermittent zig-zags of lightning shed an intense glare for a swift second and left the wild night darker by contrast. The crash of thunder following in the wake of the lambent flames, rolled and tumbled about like air-wave sounds of giant cannonballs hurtling through space.

In the midst of the melee came a new distraction, a sort of thump-thumping on the stairs, like uneven footsteps ascending. Rose sat up quickly, drawing her negligee closely about her, her horrified eyes fastened on the door. Then she drew a deep sigh and relaxed. Surely it was Molly. No longer afraid, she hopped out of bed, thrusting her feet into her slippers, and started towards the door. The latch clicked, the door opened, and the Professor stepped into the room.

Rose stopped, looking inquiringly at the figure framed in the doorway. Slowly the man turned and closed the door behind him. The latch clicked ominously.

"What—why—what is it?" The sight of Hemingway alone in the room with her sent a chill quiver of fear to her heart. For he no longer seemed that kindly, gentle old man. His eyes were resting upon her, a hard, cruel light gleaming in their depths. His lips were twisted in a gruesome smile. His hand shot out, grabbing her wrist—his bony fingers closing about her arm in a grasp of iron. A sudden, hideous terror, a warning premonition of evil gripped her.

"Chuck! Chuck!" She began to scream, trying to wrench herself from the tenacious clutch of this demonic creature. Hemingway laughed, a short, sardonic laugh, that chilled her through and through. "You can scream all you like, young lady," he mocked. "There's no one here. All the others have gone. We're quite alone!" The Professor released her wrist, thrusting her from him with a violent gesture.

"Sit down," he ordered, pointing to the bed. "I want to have a little talk with you." The girl backed away, staring at the man as though hypnotized. Her trembling limbs seemed scarcely able to bear her slight weight. She caught at the poster of the bed and sank down beside it, leaning against it for support. She hardly heard his words, let alone understood his purpose.

The Professor jerked up a chair and sat down, facing the girl. "What," he demanded bluntly, "did you do with the money you took from that satchel?"

"Money—satchel?" Rose was stunned by the question. She could only stare blankly, uncomprehendingly. And then as the import of his words filtered through her brain she leaned against the post, gasping faintly. "Oh, I didn't take it—I didn't—I didn't." She began to sob wildly, her whole body shaking in a paroxysm of frenzied fear.

"Come on, now!" The Professor seized her wrist again, twisting it cruelly, pointing his long, lean forefinger directly at her. "No stalling. I know you took the money. And you're going to tell me where it is, or else—" His fingers dug deep into her soft flesh, bruising it. "I didn't—oh, please!" she begged. "Please let me go. I didn't take the money!"

Hemingway thrust her hand away as quickly as he had seized it. He rose, kicked back his chair, and looked at his watch. "I'll give you just one hour to talk or—" he concluded his sentence with a gesture so significant of the agony she had just endured that Rose began to cry even more violently. He settled his chair between the girl and the door and sank back into it, as though preparing for a vigil.

Rose lay across the bed, crying bitterly. Her shoulders shook hysterically; in her heart she was calling for Chuck. Why didn't he come—why didn't he come to save her from this cruel torment? He couldn't have gone away and left her to such a fate of his own free will.

"No matter what happens, remember I love you." She could hear his voice reassuring her.

At last her tears ceased; her eyelids were swollen and hot; her breath came in long, racking sobs. She feared to turn, lest she should find herself staring into those cruel, narrow eyes that bored straight through her.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN TO GIVE SUPPORT TO HOOVER

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert is Receiving Support Almost Daily From All Sections

WISH TO AID THE CAUSE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 3.—Promises of support for the Hoover-Curtis ticket are being received daily by Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, director of the women's division of the Republican campaign, from Democratic women who assert that under no circumstances will they support their own party's nominees in this year's election. Many promise not only to vote for Mr. Hoover and Senator Curtis, but to work for them right up to election day and to contribute financially if necessary.

Outstanding among the Democratic women turning to the Republican national ticket are Mrs. Nancy Murray Mann, of Huntington, W. Va., and Mrs. Vertude M. Pattangall, of Maine, each formerly a Democratic national committeewoman from her state. Mrs. Mann was elected delegate to this year's Houston convention. She received 60,000 votes though she opposed the present Democratic nominee, who carried the state. In a statement announcing she would support Hoover, she says, in part:

"Yes, it is easy to vote for Herbert Hoover, for American womanhood knew, admired and loved Herbert Hoover for all his fine qualities of administration and leadership in the time of strain and stress of our nation. Her clear vision of the man she came to reverence and to confidently trust, cannot be blinded or clouded by any political propaganda or petty partisanship."

"It is easy for the womanhood of our nation to turn instinctively to Herbert Hoover. Outstanding Democratic women all over our land listened anxiously all during the Kansas City convention with a prayer in their hearts for the nomination of Hoover so that if the inevitable happened, we would have a safe harbor for our suffrage."

Mrs. Pattangall, in announcing her support of the Hoover-Curtis ticket, said she considered her action entirely within her rights as a Democrat.

"The Houston convention adopted a platform satisfactory to Democrats who believe in prohibition," she said. "The party's nominee and the chairman of its National Committee have repudiated that platform."

Another woman formerly prominent in Democratic circles but now supporting the Republican ticket is Mrs. Ada Orme Dupuy of Washington, D. C. She served with the Democratic national committee in 1924 and has been one of the leading organizers of women in that party. Working independently, she recently formed a Democratic Women for Hoover Club with representatives from twelve states present. They passed resolutions declaring the Democratic nominee was "forced" on his party and that his "training and narrow political experience leave him quite unqualified to cope with national and international problems."

A typical letter from among those from the rank and file of Democratic women was sent by Mrs. F. Moore, 2630 East 24th street, Brooklyn, N. Y. "My people have always been democrats," she wrote, "but I could not possibly vote for the Democratic candidate. I hope and pray Mr. Hoover will be our next President."

THE SPIRIT OF NEIGHBORLINESS

Of Course We Like to Show the Neighbors

NEXT to our own satisfaction in a new possession is the joy of showing it to friends and neighbors. As a rule they derive as much pleasure therefrom as we do. It may even be passed across the back-yard fence for inspection as we borrow that friendly cup of sugar.

Much the same thought actuates the merchants of Bristol in arranging special display occasions of that which they have carefully and painstakingly provided for you, their neighbors, who come into stores all through the years.

For want of a better word they call these occasions their Fall and Spring "Openings."

Just now they are planning their Fall Opening.

Keep a neighborly eye peeled for further newspaper announcements of the program. It will be well worth telling the neighbors. THANK YOU

Sport News Of The Day

His Lordship Wins—Twice

Lord Burghley of England won first place in the 400-metre hurdles at the Olympic games by covering the distance in 53.25 seconds—a world's record. But his greatest victory was in winning the hand of the beautiful Lady Mary Montague Douglas Scott (inset), fourth daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch. The engagement was announced by the beauty's parents simultaneously with word of Lord Burghley's success at Amsterdam.

St. Ann's Drops Lead In Twilight League

St. Ann's was again blanked in the third. Tulio fled out. Riola made a wonderful catch of Fields' short fly over third. Gilardi walked. Gilardi was caught off first and tagged out. W. Fine to J. Fine to Mangan.

Tulio went bad in Leedom's part. The result was four runs and the game. Barrett singled, Riola was hit by a pitched ball. J. Fine singled, scoring Barrett. W. Fine singled, counting Riola and J. Fine. Connors walked. Mangan reached first on O'Riola's error. Mangan wandered too far off first and was trapped by a quick throw to O'Riola by Stallone. In a short run-down, Fine tried for home and made it when Paletta threw wild to the plate. Connors went too far off third and was tagged out. Stallone to Roe. White fled to Paletta. Wilkinson grounded out.

St. Ann's rallied in its final turn, but fell one run short. Tulio singled and was forced by Fields. Gilardi walked. O'Riola beat out a roller to second, filling the sacks. Cooper caught Roe's loft, counting Fields. McDevitt was hit by a pitched ball, again loading the bases. Missera walked, forcing in Gilardi. Paletta singled over third, counting O'Riola and McDevitt. Stallone fanned.

In the Leedom's part, J. Fine singled and stole second. W. Fine fouled out. Stallone caught J. Fine trying to steal third. Connors breezed.

THE NEW ERA

90 SECONDS

Ninety seconds is the average.

But most out-of-town calls, up to forty or fifty miles away, go through instantly—just like local calls. You don't even hang up your receiver.

Even on calls to the most distant points it's very seldom that you wait as long as four or five minutes.

Speed—that's important on out-of-town calls.
